ASK HUNTERS TO GO EASY ON DEER

Harrisburg, Sept. 30 (AP)—The state game commission answered demands from three counties for suspension of the 1938 antlerless deer season with a request today that hunters not prey on sections where deer are few.

Narrowing of the season from the usual two weeks to six days should not greatly reduce the number of doe, the commissioner said. The season will be November 28 to December 3. Hunters also were asked to seek deer in outlying districts where the game has damaged farm crops.

York county sportsmen have said that if the commission did not suspend the season by October 1 they would ask a court injunction against it. The Sportsmen's Association of Monroe and Pike counties has asked legislators to have the season closed there.

The season for the woodcock, or "whistling bird," opens Saturday. Other seasons opening in October are: October 15 to November 28, federal season on ducks; October 31 to November 26, small game season. Ruffed grouse, bob white quail and varying hares are restricted to the first two weeks of small game season; the season is open the entire four weeks on turkeys, ringneck pheasants, rabbits and squirrels.

The Adams County Fish and Game association also has expressed opposition to the antlerless deer season.

SON, DREAMING, SHOOTS FATHER

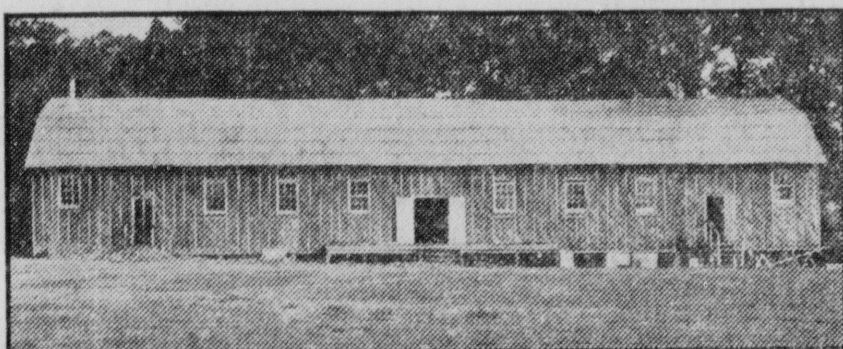

Frederick, Md., Sept. 30 (AP)—Curtis Houck, 26, critically wounded his father with two pistol shots at their home early today while having a nightmare, State's Attorney Sherman P. Bowers said.

The father, Raymond, 49-year-old trackman for the Pennsylvania railroad, was in the hospital here with bullet wounds in his abdomen and leg, Bowers said.

Curtis Houck stated he knew nothing of the shooting until his wounded father cried "put that gun down," Bowers said.

Bowers said the younger man, hysterical as physicians performed an emergency operation on his father, did not give the nature of the dream. The state's attorney said Curtis would be held pending the outcome of his father's injuries.

13 Enrollees Quit Camp Today

The new recreation hall, largest of its kind in the Third Corps area, was dedicated with fitting exercises Thursday evening at C.C.C. camp MP-2 on the battlefield. The approximately 200 colored enrollees, whose volunteer efforts built the structure, and guests witnessed the dedication with several groups of the camp boys taking part.

Captain Frederick L. Slade, commanding officer at the camp, opened the program with brief remarks and then presented Wallace J. Campbell, educational adviser at the camp, who served as master of ceremonies during the evening. After the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," the invocation was given by Dr. Louis King, of the historical staff of the National park office. The camp glee club of 15 voices sang "City Called Heaven" and "I Can Tell the World About This."

William Hilton, who had been selected by the camp personnel as the "valedictorian" of the "class" of 13 boys who leave camp today at the end of their enrollment periods, talked on the "Effects of Education in Company 1355." He said the most noteworthy accomplishments in educational work at the camp have been along the lines of vocational guidance. He termed the new recreation hall, built of materials salvaged from the abandoned camp MP-1, as "education exemplified in concrete form and another monument to Company 1355."

After Campbell sang "Ol' Man River," Stanley West, the salutatorian, gave a report on the erection of the new building which started last fall and listed boys who had an active part in the work. Guests were introduced by Campbell. Lieutenant Samuel W. Tucker, who is retiring from active service at the camp to the practice of law at Alexandria, Virginia, spoke briefly.

Superintendent James R. McConaghie spoke briefly before he showed colored slides and motion pictures of Gettysburg battlefield scenes. A company dance to the music of Bud Codori's orchestra concluded the evening's program.

R. W. BREAM HERD LEADS COW TEST FOR THIS MONTH

The Ayrshire herd of Roy W. Bream, Gettysburg R. 2, near Fairfield, carried off double honors for butterfat production during the month of September, the report of Tester John F. Vocum showed today.

Bream's 13 cattle not only carried off herd honors with the highest average butterfat production record of the 11 herds under test, but a registered Ayrshire cow in the herd took individual butterfat honors with a record of 55.4 pounds. Topping all other individuals in butterfat production, that animal gave 1497 pounds of milk during the same period. Two other animals in the Bream herd are included in the list of the 10 highest producers in butterfat among the 179 cattle under test this month.

Vocum reports that 17 of the 179 animals under test gave 40 pounds of butterfat or more and that the Bream animal was the only one to top the 50-pound mark this month. Twenty-five cattle gave a half ton or more of milk and 13 of them passed 1,200 pounds in milk yield.

In addition to the Bream herd leader, animals making these records were listed among the best 10: A registered Holstein in the Edgar W. Weaver herd, near Gettysburg, gave 48.6 pounds of butterfat and 1,518 pounds of milk; a registered Guernsey in the Elmer J. Son Wants to Sue Mother for $50,000 for Death of Father In McKnightstown Accident

If you like puzzles, consider this one that has been thrust upon the state Supreme court for solution:

Can an eight-year-old lad sue his mother for $50,000 because she drove the family automobile into a tree, killing the father? The suit was brought in Allegheny county court in behalf of the boy, Jerome M. Minkin, through his "next friend," Gertrude Marshall, against Mrs. Kate M. Minkin.

The action charges that the mother was guilty of negligence when the car struck a tree near McKnightstown on May 30, 1936.

Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Allegheny county, decided in favor of the mother, declaring that such a suit by a minor was against public policy.

But Judge M. A. Musmanno, of the Allegheny bench, dissented. So the Supreme court was asked for the ultimate decision.

Mrs. Minkin, her son, Jerome, and a daughter, Harriet, were injured in the fatal crash. The accident was caused when Mrs. Minkin lost control of the car and it ran off the road, hitting a tree. Minkin was killed instantly.

Forty Hours devotion will begin at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock with a high mass and procession.

The Rev. Fr. Thomas Clayton, of Charlottesville, Virginia, will speak during the devotions. Services will be held Sunday evening at 7 o'clock and Monday and Tuesday evenings at 7:30 o'clock. Masses will be held Monday and Tuesday mornings at 5:30, 7 and 9 o'clock.

Each evening service will include the Rosary, sermon and benediction. The series of services will close Tuesday evening with a procession of school children and clergy.

TWO IN RELIEF JOBS APPROVED

Barton, executive director, and Mrs. Rosalie C. Exactly six months ago Colonel Barton was chosen by the board as executive director but his status had remained "temporary" until his formal election from regularly certified lists received from Harrisburg.

Mrs. Raffensperger has been engaged in relief work for about five years, serving first as a visitor for the state relief board and later being made executive secretary under the former Adams county mothers' assistance board which handled aid to dependent children, blind pensions and old age assistance.

No other matters of business were transacted at Thursday's meeting. All members of the board attended. The next regular meeting will be held on October 11.

Czech Premier Appeals for Loyalty After Accepting 4-Power Partition Plan

Reactions to 'Peace' Parley

ITALIANS MAY LEAVE SPAIN

Rome, Sept. 30 (AP)—Premier Mussolini received one of the greatest welcomes his followers ever have accorded him when he returned to Rome today from the four-power conference at Munich. At the railroad station to greet Il Duce were many representatives of the diplomatic corps. Mussolini strode from the station through a narrow path police cleared for him amid the cheering crowds. He smiled broadly and snapped the fascist salute in response to his tumultuous reception. Diplomatic circles considered that a start toward withdrawal of Italian legionnaires from Spain was likely to result from the peace-saving conference.

War Averted

(By the Associated Press)

Europe has averted war. The big four at Munich—British Prime Minister Chamberlain, Reichsfuehrer Hitler, Italian Premier Mussolini, French Premier Daladier—turned Europe from the brink of conflict by:

1. Allowing Hitler symbolic occupation of Sudetenland immediately—Hitler's army enters at midnight.

2. Arranging peaceful, gradual cession of Sudeten German areas, plebiscites in doubtful areas; an international commission to regulate the annexation.

Czechoslovakia, unrepresented at the conference, has accepted the plan.

A new Hitler-Chamberlain agreement declared "the desire of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again."

Daladier acclaimed mutual good will between France and Germany.

Britain hailed Chamberlain as a preserver of peace.

Italy hailed Mussolini as a savior of peace.

Germany rejoiced in settlement with honor.

Soviet Russia—Czechoslovakia's mutual aid ally and partner with Britain and France in threats to resist force—was not invited. Arrangements were made to satisfy Polish and Hungarian claims for slices of Czechoslovakia.

Prague, Sept. 30 (AP)—Czechoslovakia's soldier-premier, General Jan Syrový, in an appeal broadcast to the nation tonight declared that "superior force compelled us to accept" the four-power Munich agreement for the dismemberment of the country.

"This is the most difficult moment in my life," declared the 50-year-old general who led 70,000 Czech troops in an epic march across Siberia toward the end of the World war.

MELVIN OYLER FOUND GUILTY

Melvin C. Oyler, 20, Harrisburg, was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the death of his cousin, Kenneth Oyler, 20, Gettysburg, in a verdict read this morning in Dauphin county court.

Walter Compton, Esq., Harrisburg, defense counsel, promptly moved for permission to file reasons for a new trial.

The Oyler case went to the jury at 2:55 o'clock Thursday afternoon and three hours later the jury returned a sealed verdict which was opened in court this morning.

Oyler was charged with responsibility for the death of Kenneth Oyler, a private in the United States army air corps at Langley field, Virginia. Young Oyler was killed when the tandem motorcycle operated by his cousin, with Kenneth riding as a passenger, collided with an automobile operated by Clyde R. Sheaffer, Harrisburg, on the evening of May 10 at a Harrisburg street intersection.

Kenneth Oyler, who was stationed temporarily at the Middletown air field during special maneuvers, died a few minutes after the accident. The involuntary manslaughter charge was filed against his cousin, who was seriously hurt in the accident.

Trial of the case had opened in Harrisburg Wednesday before Judge John E. Fox and was completed Thursday afternoon.

The defendant testified that he had no recollection of the details of the collision because he was rendered unconscious in the crash. A number of witnesses said that Oyler was driving carefully, when the accident occurred.

LITTLESTOWN BONDS ARE SOLD

At a special meeting of the Littlestown school board Thursday afternoon, a $14,000 bond issue, which refunds money secured through temporary loans at the time of the construction of a school building in Littlestown several years ago, was sold to the First National bank of Gettysburg for $14,525.80, the highest bid. Three banks and two bond-issuing houses made offers for the issue.

There are 28 bonds of $500 each which bear three per cent interest. The first two bonds will mature in 1940 and two others each succeeding year until the issue is exhausted.

Board President Emory S. Snyder presided at the meeting of the board.

After the meeting here the state candidates will go on to York for another meeting. They came here from a noon meeting at McConnellsburg.

On Thursday evening the Adams county republicans opened official campaign headquarters in the former Citizens' Trust company building on Baltimore street.

Dr. C. H. Heldt attended a convention of the Pennsylvania Osteopathic association at the Yorktowne hotel, York, today.

PEARSON SAYS F. D. R. NOTE TO IL DUCE HELPED PRESERVE PEACE

Drew Pearson, of Washington, D. C., noted newspaperman and lecturer, told the nearly 900 Gettysburg college students and others gathered in the Majestic theatre this morning, among other things, that:

It is the belief of the highest-placed authorities in Washington that if a general war breaks out in Europe, the United States will be drawn into it;

President Roosevelt will, within the next few weeks, attempt to bring the countries of Europe to agree on a general disarmament plan, and

It was a flattering note from the United States that in all probability caused Mussolini to act as mediator between Hitler and the allied nations in the Munich conference that ended for the moment the threat of war.

First of Year's Lecturers

Pearson was the first in a series of lectures to be obtained by Gettysburg college during the course of the scholastic year. He spoke for more than an hour on three main topics: The problem facing President Roosevelt in keeping a political equilibrium within the ranks of the democratic party; the economic problem facing the government and the country of pulling America out of the recession and keeping it on a prosperous level, and the problem of heading off war.

After giving brief sketches of the personalities in the present cabinet of the United States, Pearson claimed that the cabinet is "a sort of good natured club" rather than a group of able leaders. The President, Pearson said, is his own cabinet, acting as the complete executive department.

Speaking of the "brain trust" of the early days of the administration the Washington columnist said that it failed simply because its membership was drawn from impractical men who could not stand the publicity forced on them by their positions.

The President and his advisors are working on the assumption that the only way to keep America out of a general European war is by preventing such a happening, Pearson told his audience. It is the belief of the top-flight officials that if such a war breaks out dential purge conducted in the primaries held this summer gave "the President a terrific beating." But the purge did one thing, Pearson claimed, that might be for the good of the country. It forced a split between the conservative and progressive forces of the democratic party.

Vice President Garner and President Roosevelt, although personal friends, are the two leaders of the opposing forces, the speaker claimed. Both are looking forward to 1940 when each hopes to nominate the democratic candidate for the presidency. Roosevelt has no idea of running for office, Pearson claimed.

The main difficulty before Roosevelt was that his election was the result of a union of various different forces. The presidential control of these forces was excellent until the Supreme court issue arose. Then the conservative democrats headed by Garner, who had accepted Roosevelt because of his success as a politician, saw a chance to destroy what they had disliked in his policies and to bring their principles to the front in the democratic party.

Five Motorists Violate Code

Five motorists have been arrested for violations of the state motor code and four of them have been charged with speeding. The other faces a count of failing to obey a through traffic stop sign. State motor police from the Gettysburg substation laid the charges.

This morning Jacob E. Baker, Littlestown R. 4, was charged before Justice of the Peace Leo A. Storm, M. Pleasant township, with passing a through traffic stop sign.

The defendants on speeding charges follow: D. H. W. A. Hanson, Gettysburg, charged before Justice William D. Brown, Hunterstown, with speeding at 63 miles an hour in Straban township; Camby G. Wolford, Hagerstown, who paid a $10 fine and costs before Justice John H. Basehor on a charge of speeding at 79 miles an hour; H. H. Frey, McKeesport, accused before Justice Brown of driving 60 miles an hour; and Rufus W. Weaver, Gettysburg R. 2, charged before Justice Brown with driving 60 miles an hour.

DATA ON CONSERVATION PROGRAMS AVAILABLE

In response to inquiries from farmers, especially those who have not participated in past agricultural conservation programs, for information on acreage allotments, so they might comply and be eligible for payments under the 1939 program, the Adams county agricultural conservation committee has advised all farmers who have any doubts regarding requirements to get in touch immediately with the county office, located at the farm bureau building, Gettysburg. Payments for complying with the wheat allotments, the committee stated, are made on the basis of the number of acres in the allotment unless the number of acres seeded to wheat is less than 80 per cent of the allotment, in which case payment is based on the number of acres planted.

DIONNE DAMAGE SUIT DISMISSED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dr. Allan R. Dafoe returned today to "my five little girls"—the Dionne quintuplets—after winning dismissal of a $1,000,000 damage suit.

The suit was filed by Ivan I. Spear, a Chicago promoter who signed a contract for exploitation of the quintuplets with their father, Olive Dionne, soon after their birth.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes ordered the suit dismissed late Thursday on grounds that no evidence had been presented to show that the defendants had conspired to break the contract, as alleged by Spear.

The defendants, in addition to Doctor Dafoe, were Pathe News and the Woolworth and Kresge store chains.

1,500 Schoolhouses To Be Closed During Term

Harrisburg, Sept. 30 (AP).—The little red schoolhouses—where father and mother learned reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic—are passing from Pennsylvania's educational horizon.

Approximately 1,500 of the historic, one-room structures which once dotted the countryside will be dismantled during this school term.

Dr. Donald P. Davis, director of the bureau of research in the state Department of Public Instruction, said he expects "at least a third of all the one-room schools in the state" to be closed by 1939.

The consolidation program of the rural schools is a phase of a $85,000,000 P.W.A.-General State Authority construction schedule under which the state hopes to erect at least 750 new school buildings within a year.

General Ludwig Krejci, commander in chief of the army, issued a proclamation appealing to the army loyalty to protect the new state of Czechoslovakia. This followed the premier's broadcast.

"Superior force has compelled us to accept," declared Premier Syrovky. "My duty was to consider everything. As a soldier I had to choose the way of peace.

"The nation will be stronger and more united.

"We have chosen the only right course.

"Four powers have decided to ask from us the abdication of German territories. We had to choose between a useless fight and sacrifices.

"We have accepted the unheard of sacrifices imposed upon us. We have had to choose between the death of a nation and abdication of some territories.

"We shall accomplish the conditions imposed on us. The main thing is that we are remaining ourselves and we must be united."

Anglo-German Pact Signed

Munich, Sept. 30 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain and Reichsfuehrer Hitler today signed an agreement in which they accepted the new four-power Munich pact and the Anglo-German naval treaty of 1936 as "symbolic of the desires of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again."

Announcement of this agreement came after the British leader and the German fuehrer had talked for two hours this morning in Hitler's private residence with only Paul Schmidt, Hitler's interpreter, present.

The new Anglo-German peace pact came within a few hours of the signature of the four-power pact assuring Europe of peace at the price of cession of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland to Germany. The Czech legation in London announced acceptance of the agreement.

Even as the two statesmen framed their new compact against war an international commission was working out terms of the arrangement reached by Hitler, Chamberlain, Premier Mussolini, of Italy, and Premier Daladier, of France, in Thursday's historic sessions in the fuehrerhaus here.

The Anglo-German agreement, announced by Chamberlain, follows:

"We, the German fuehrer and chancellor and the British prime minister, have had a further meeting today and are agreed in recognizing that the question of Anglo-German relations is of first importance for the two countries and for Europe.

"We regard the agreement signed Thursday night and the Anglo-German naval agreement as symbolic of the desires of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again.

"The 1936 Anglo-German naval treaty limited Germany's naval tonnage to 35 per cent of that of Great Britain."

"We are resolved that the method of consultation shall be the method adopted to deal with any other questions that may concern our two countries, and we are determined to continue our efforts to remove possible sources of difference and thus to contribute to assure the peace of Europe."

Chamberlain then left to return to London.

Premier Daladier of France also left Munich by plane.

Before his departure Chamberlain announced that the Prague government had accepted the agreement imposed by the Munich conference. He said this information came from the British minister to Czechoslovakia.

Results of Conference

Following are terse comparisons of what Hitler demanded and what he gets under the four-power agreement:

DEMANDED—Evacuation by the Czechoslovak army and police forces and officials of a wide area of Sudetenland by October 1, without removal of any properties.

GRANTED—Evacuation of an area roughly corresponding to what he asked for by October 10, without destruction "of any existing installations."

DEMANDED—German army occupation of essentially Sudeten territories by October 1.

GRANTED—Occupation of four

State Wants 140 Millions Of Spending-Lending Bill

Harrisburg, Sept. 30 (AP).—General state authority employees shaped up today last details of plans for the $140,000,000 chunk Pennsylvania hopes to get out of the huge federal lending-spending bill.

The $8 state institutional projects total $54,000,000. More than $30,000,000 alone was for the Welfare department.

The Department of Public Instruction estimated its school consolidation projects would exceed $80,000,000.

YOUNG CHIMPANZEE

FACES STARVATION

New Orleans, Sept. 30 (AP).—Audubon park zoo attendants today studied the risk of rescuing a newborn chimpanzee from starvation in the embrace of a foster mother.

When Chimp Coco had the baby Wednesday, "Papa" Pete was enraged, hurled Coco against the cage bars. Coco dropped the little chimp but before Pete could get it Chimp-Luizette clutched the infant.

There was a wild domestic scramble until attendants got the chimps in separate cages. But Luizette refused to give up the baby, which she could not nurse.

Park Superintendent Frank Neelis said he planned to use a hypodermic to put Luizette to sleep, if zoo experts at Chicago and St. Louis approved of the course.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Passing of the European war crisis today brought heavy buying into the stock market and leading issues shot up one to more than three points before profit taking put on the brakes. In one of the most exciting openings in months, large blocks of pivotal stocks changed hands in the first half hour, with the ticker tape behind as much as two minutes. Offerings soon began to cut into the gainers, however, and, near the fourth hour, quotations were off from the best. Dealings reverted to a slow jog.

REDS AND BUGS OPEN IMPORTANT SERIES TODAY

(By the Associated Press)

Everyone is sounding off about Cincinnati Reds being the team to beat next year, but it looks as though they'll have plenty to say in the national league race these next four days.

The Pirates lost another to the Cubs Thursday, a 10 to 1 beating that set them a game and a half behind the league leading Cubs. The jitter-bugs now go into a four-game series with the Reds at Cincinnati, a series that holds their last chance of winning the pennant.

The Cubs will be playing three games at St. Louis. If the Cubs win all three, the Pirates can't catch up. If Chicago drops one and Pittsburgh wins all four of its starts, including today's double-header, the Pirates will win by a single percentage point.

How the Pirates must be wishing these were the peaceful Reds of other years. Instead, it's a club that has climbed from eighth to fourth in one season, a club with a McCormick, a Vander Meer, a Lombardi, a Derringer.

Whatever they do in this four-game set, the Reds are bound for big things in 1939. They have come up with one of the best young first basemen of the last decade, Buck McCormick, and young Harry Craft, also completing his first year in the majors, shows signs of greatness as an outfielder.

Manager Will McKechnie thinks they will be even better next year—and the other clubs thought they were good enough back in June when they were dominating the flag fight.

"This team is just a year away," Will said recently. "Give us another year and it will be 50 per cent better. By the end of the season the boys will be more sure of themselves. If they can carry that into 1939 I'm sure they'll be up around the top all year. They beat themselves too often this year."

At any rate the Reds hold the Pirates' destiny today, Saturday and Sunday as the league race looks like this:

Club	W	L	Pct.	Games
Chicago	88	61	.591	— 3
Pittsburgh	85	61	.582	1½ 4

The Reds got into shape for the Pirates Thursday by beating the Cardinals 7-4. Johnny Vander Meer chalked up his 14th win of the year as Ernie Lombardi collected a double and a single to regain the league batting lead.

The Bees' Danny MacFayden gave the Dodgers nine hits and won the first game of a double bill, 2-1, but the Brooks came back with an eight-run second inning and took the nightcap, 8-6. The Giants, starting to hit again, pounded out 13 hits and beat the Phillies, 9-2.

The American league drew closer to the end of the season as the Yanks slapped the Athletics around, 7-4, in the first game and then tied the second, 1-1. Bob Johnson of the A's knocked two homers in the first game to boost his total to 30.

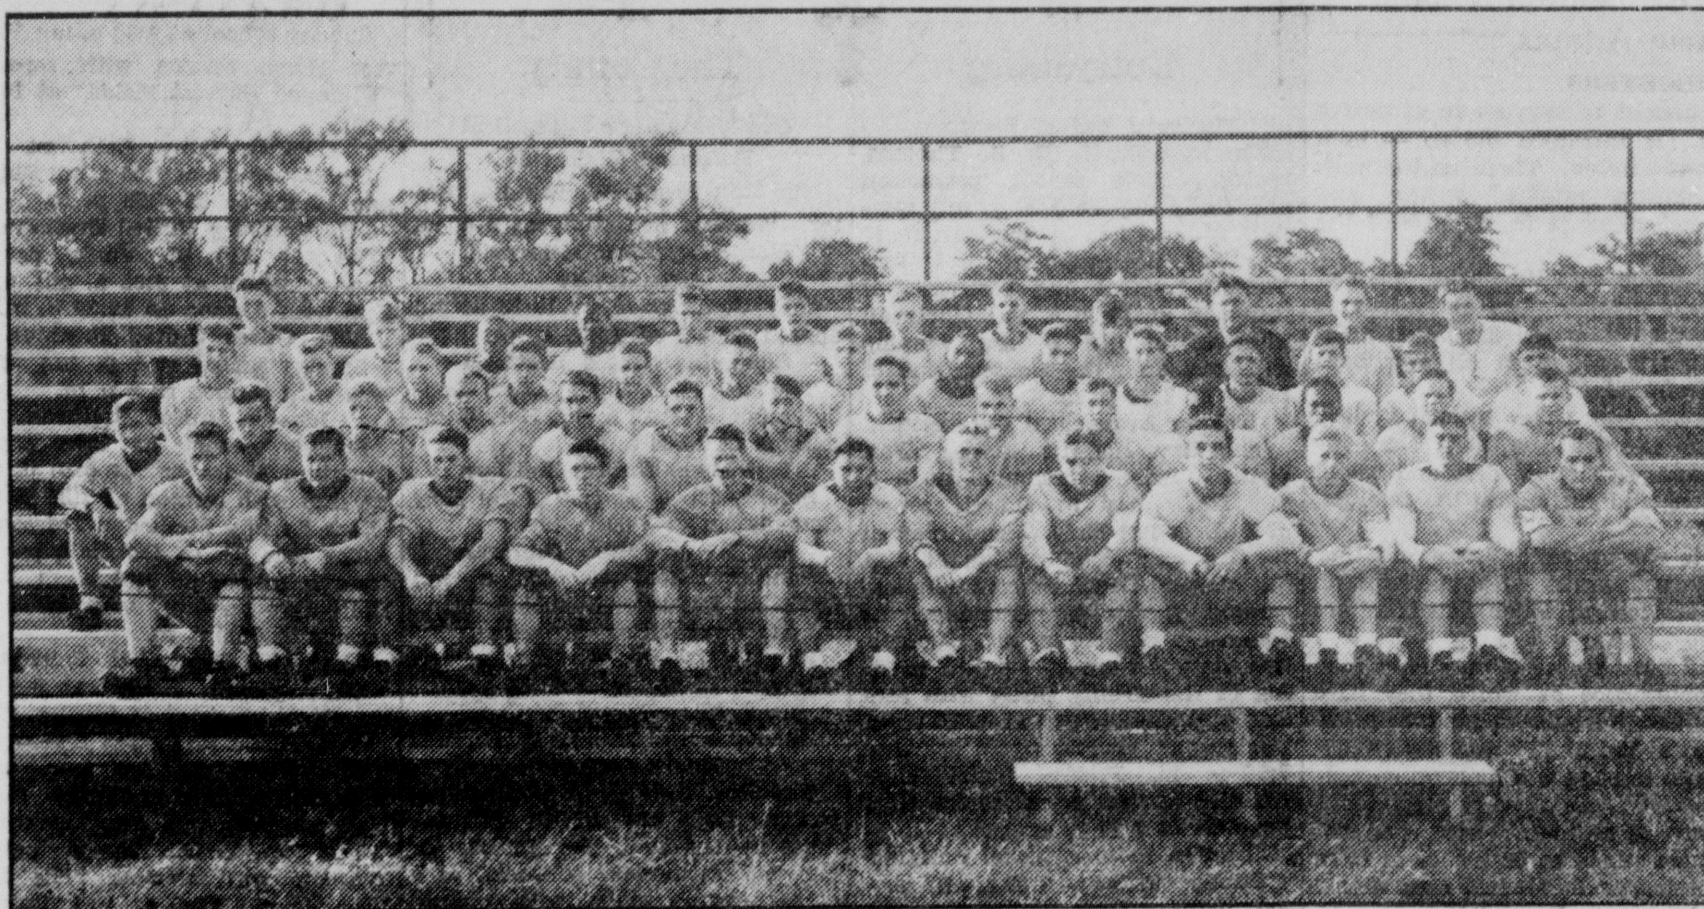

The rampant Red Sox continued to knock the cover off the ball, beating the Senators, 13-5. The Tigers downed the Browns, 6-2, with Hank Greenberg held to a single, and the Cleveland Indians shaded the White Sox, 9-8, on Roy Weatherly's tenth-inning homer.

Bullet Squad Ready to Face Bucknell in Opening Clash

A desire to play against Bucknell before terminating his gridiron career will be fulfilled for Paul Fulmer, Gettysburg college half-back, who has been nominated by Coach Henry T. Bream to start against the Bisons when the teams clash at Lewisburg Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the opening game of the season for the locals.

Fulmer is a native of Milton which is located just across the river from Lewisburg and a large number of his home town fans are expected to be on hand for the game. If the Bullet back can flash the form that he has shown from time to time the Bucknell players will have a busy afternoon in store for them.

The squad is in excellent condition for the game and has shown good spirit during the pre-season drills. Only Weems and Didrickson, who will be out of action with injuries for about two weeks, will not be in uniform.

During the last week Coaches Bream and Beeson have been drilling the squad on pass defense. Efforts are also being made to pep up the charge of the forward wall as the success of the locals against the heavier Bisons will depend largely on the ability of the Bullets to outcharge their opponents.

According to the starting line-up chosen by Coach Bream the backfield will consist of "Reds" Bender at fullback, Fulmer and Fred Hamilton at halfbacks and Yunaska at quarterback.

Stiff battles are still being waged for the line positions and if they continue the locals should have a powerful forward wall. The line is expected to consist of Finchbaugh and either Yovicisin or Burman, ends; Chester and either Ashburn or Hill, tackles; Henry, Deardorff or Schard, guards, and Utz or O'Neill, center.

The squad will not leave for Lewisburg until Saturday morning. After breakfasting at Hotel Gettysburg the squad will be taken to Harrisburg where lunch will be served about 10:30 o'clock. From Harrisburg the team will go directly to the Bucknell gymnasium and thence to the field of battle.

Sports Roundup

(Pinch-hitting for Eddie Brietz)
New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Wanna buy some nice new lumber cheap?

Apply to B. Benswanger, Forbes field, Pittsburgh. . . . Pie Traynor's sleepwalkers don't figure to get over that kicking around before next spring. . . . And if Tom meany won't mind, you might think about how much those old American leaguers, like Tony Lazzeri, Carl Reynolds and Jack Russell, have had to do with the Cub drive in the new minor league's pennant race. . . . Hey, Jack Ruppert, how about your two farms, Kansas City and Newark, tangling in the little world series? . . . What with the Yankees and all, first thing you know they'll be investigating the good colonel for a monopoly of trade. . . .

Harry Cooper, Horton Smith, Jimmy Thomson and Lawson Little are so fagged out from their exhibition tour they're beginning to look a little like some of us duffers. . . . They're taking a month off to rest up. . . . Pirate series boosted the Cubs over the million mark for home attendance this season. . . . John Wickham, a little six-foot-four fellow from Findlay, Ohio, had to miss the first couple of weeks practice with the Tulsa University, freshmen. . . . Seems he had to wait till they built a couple of shoes to go around his size 14½ tootsies. . . .

Scene at Thursday Cubs-Pirates game: Paul Waner, at bat, gets something in his eye; Gabby (Big Hearted Hartnett, always ready to help, tries to dig it out with his catcher's mitt. . . . Why not a pick and shovel, Gabby? . . . P.G.A. champ Paul Runyan and Jug McSpaden hop off from Newark today for a 28-day golfing tour of South America—16,000 miles by plane. . . .

With our chin sticking way out to there, here are the usual 2½ star specials for Saturday (but don't quote us). . . . With Sid Luckman pitching, Columbia over Yale. . . . Santa Clara to do that thing to Stanford, unless Tiny Thorndill's hiding a line in his hip pocket. . . . Cornell over Colgate—just so Andy Kerr won't be using the crying towel for nothing. . . . And the sleeper is Michigan over Michigan State, because Fritz Crisler has worked up more "rah-rah" spirit than the Wolverines have showed in years. . . . Of course, a stronger line and faster backs than '37 won't do any harm.

MAROONS READY FOR FIRST TILT

The long awaited whistle opening the 1938 football season will be heard locally Saturday when Gettysburg high school clashes with Washington Township high on the high school field at 2:30 o'clock.

For five weeks the Maroons have been drilling daily in preparation for their eight-game schedule and eagerly await the opening whistle confident of turning in an enviable record.

A leg condition developed by "Bob" Fortenbaugh, center, may keep the snapper-back out of the opening line-up.

In the event Fortenbaugh cannot play his place will probably be taken over by Linn with Fissel moving to tackle from end. Bingham will replace Fissel at end.

The Maroons were scheduled for a light drill this afternoon in their final pre-game practice.

With ideal football weather forecast for Saturday a large crowd is expected to see Coach Forney's 1938 gridiron edition in its initial game.

Although lacking experience the entire squad has shown great possibilities and should give a good account of itself.

Although defeated last week in its opening game Washington Township

LEHMAN TO RUN AGAIN FOR N. Y. GOVERNORSHIP

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—New York's Governor Lehman yielded to the pleas of democratic party chieftains today and agreed to accept renomination for a fourth term.

His decision climaxing three days of intra-party conferences made virtually certain his renomination by acclamation in the party's state convention. Lehman's decision placed him in the field against Manhattan's racket busting District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, the republican gubernatorial nominee.

Girl Studies U. S. Homes To Learn Statesmanship

Tampa, Fla., (AP)—Trim and dainty Senorita Magdalena Fernandez of Uruguay is pretty enough to win a beauty contest, but she wants to be a diplomat.

And the slender, 20-year-old brunette with wavy hair, pearly teeth and a ready smile has picked her final training for her chosen career. It is to learn first hand about American home life. Such knowledge, she believes, is essential in diplomacy and she is obtaining it by a series of week-long visits with Tampa families.

Her hostesses are members of the American Association of University Women, who arranged for her to spend a year at the University of Tampa on an exchange scholarship. Previously she had been graduated at the University of Montevideo in her native land and had studied at Colby college in Vermont.

From Tampa she plans to go to New York and thence home to enter the diplomatic service.

Wilson Bream Sells Home to Fraternity.—Wilson Bream today announced the sale of his home on Broadway to the Delta Kappa Sigma fraternity. Possession will be given November 1. Transfer was made through C. A. Williams.Two Couples Make Weddings Public.—Two Gettysburg couples, married last week, made public their nuptials on Tuesday morning.

Miss Mae Shetter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shetter, East Lincoln avenue, and Charles Codori, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Codori, Sr., York street, were married in the rectory of St. Francis Xavier church by the Rev. Father Mark E. Stook last Wednesday evening. They were attended by Miss Carrie and John Codori.

Klan Is Set Up at Meeting Here.—The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan are not a hooded outlaw gang; they are not anti-nothing; they are not in politics, but they do believe in an operative patriotism among 100 per cent native-born Americans.

These remarks by the Rev. J. H. Hanson, a Baptist minister of Pittsburg, at an invitation meeting of members of the Invisible Empire and their friends in the P. O. S. of A. lodge rooms, Monday night, sum up the principles for which the Rev. Mr. Hanson says the Klan stands.

The meeting was held in defiance of Burgess William E. Olinger, who declared last week he would take steps to stop any gathering of Klansmen here was unmolested. There was no demonstration of any kind before the lodge room on Chambersburg street.

The bride was attired in a white georgette gown, trimmed with satin ribbon. She wore a veil of tulle made with a coronet of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

WHAT HAPPENED

"What happened?" cried Willy Nilly.

"Your dog, if that is your dog, is a hero," cried the people from the automobile. But the little boy was sobbing and holding his wrist. He had been too startled to know what had happened except that a dog had suddenly come from nowhere, it seemed, and had grabbed him by the wrist and that his wrist hurt.

"I'm afraid I was a bit rough, I had to think so quickly and act so quickly," Rip barkingly explained to Willy Nilly. And he licked the little boy's hands and wagged his tail so that the boy no longer felt frightened.

Miss Vera Kadel presided at the organ. Preceding the bride were the ushers, Irwin Warner, George Hunter, Robert Dean and Harold Lance.

They were followed by the bridesmaids, Misses Ruth and Florence Dean and Misses Mary and Margaret Galbraith and the matron of honor, Mrs. Harvey Warner. Little Miss Katherine Warner was flower girl. The bride entered with her brother, Harvey Warner, by whom she was given in marriage.

NO SONS—BUT DAUGHTERS

ON MY way to my office one day I chanced to stop at an attractive window display of smoking pipes. It intrigued me so — even though I am not a pipe smoker—that I went inside. There on the walls were displayed photographs of noted artists, aviators, writers, and prominent men who had found peace and pleasure in the use of the pipes made at that place.

But the thing that most interested me was a sign that said: "He had no sons to which he might pass on his art of making pipes—so he handed it down to his daughters!" And so, in that shop his daughters make pipes—and they make them so good that people from all over have bought them and sent for them for their friends.

They import the fine briars and woods and then, by hand, they fashion every sort of pipe desired. There are two daughters. I am informed, and they work hand in hand—and with those deft and useful hands they have built a successful business, and carried on the tradition of a father who took pride in his output.

Perhaps this example, or illustration, is one by which many a father with only daughters to his credit, may well profit. Not, perhaps, in the making of pipes, but in any useful business to which daughters are well adapted in this broad-minded age.

Certainly the intelligence, alertness, and initiative of women have been well demonstrated in the numberless enterprises at which they have been eminently successful. At the same time, it seems to me that many fathers have been asleep and negligent as to the ability and opportunity of daughters that they have! All they seem to need is a little encouragement along this line.

Men are so engaged in the development of so many enterprises distinctive to their individual tastes that there seems to be plenty of room for women—who have the knack for understanding what men should have—that many an enterprise initiated by women is possible.

Those two girls, who have so eminently carried on their father's business, should stand out as something inspiring—an example to all daughters who have no brothers!

Don't Marry the Man

By Jeanne Bowman

The Characters

Kathleen Gregory: beautiful and peppery redhead.
Angus Gregory: her father, owner of The Golden Girl mine.Yesterday: Because of a feud between the two families, MacDonald, owner of The Stubbhorn Boy, has refused the Gregorys right-of-way around his shaft.

Chapter Two

Marry The Man?

There wasn't much Kathleen wouldn't do for this beloved uncle; anything to show the others she preferred his gentle kindness to the domineering members who despised him.

She accepted the letter and started to read, and as she read her shoulders lifted, her chin lifted and her brows became angry arcs.

The letterhead told her the missive came from the office of The Stubbhorn boy. The signature told her it was written by the last of the MacDonalds, one Donald MacDonald.

But it was the content which sent her temper flaming until her cheeks rivaled the color of her hair. Angriely she read:

I wouldn't allow the shaft of The Golden Girl to contaminate my property. I wouldn't allow a damned Gregory on my land to discuss the matter. I wouldn't allow a hypocritical, effete, deteriorating offspring of a conniving, double-crossing Gregory within speaking distance.

Why don't you come out and see what your remote control is doing to this country? Why don't you take some interest in your miners as men? Why don't you give them a few extra pennies for decent shelter instead of spending every cent you can squeeze out of your mine on that rapid, silly flapper of yours?

I got so sick of seeing her smirking from the rotogravures of magazines that I've quit taking them. So far I haven't strained my eyes with a good look, but some day when I'm ready to go off the deep end over the way the Gregory side is handled, I'll pin one of her dental displays on the wall and . . . oh, what's the use.

My answer is no to every favor you've asked, and that is final.

Kathleen was tapping her slipper toe on the polished floor. As the tapping increased in fervor and tempo, the clan relaxed. When the heel came down with a stomp they smiled. They even laughed, but softly, when she strode back across the room and started pounding on her father's desk.

"I'm going out there and make that black-browed son of a MacDonald eat out of my hand. I'm going to make him eat every word in this letter. I'm going to cram it down his throat until he chokes on it. Silly, rapid flapper, am I? Won't strain his eyes? Well here's where he starts chumming with an oculist. When I get through with that Donald MacDonald he'll be so blind he'll sign away his right-of-way and his freedom with the same stroke of the pen."

"Kathleen," cried Mrs. Gregory in alarm, "don't marry the man!" Kathleen looked up and her eyes seemed flecked with the red flame of her hair. "Marry the man?" she repeated, "That's an idea. . . ."

No Forty Piece Band
Angus Gregory brought order into his office by sending all but the immediate family on their way.

Kathleen had listened, unmoved, to the admonitions, warnings and advice of the clan. Her brown eyes were dark with thought. The nucleus of a plan was forming in her mind; a very pleasing plan encompassing conditions of which she had dreamed for the last four years.

Silence restored she turned to her father. "When do I start?" she asked.

"Immediately," answered Gregory. "That is, as soon as I can arrange to have our car coupled on a westbound. You'll go as far as Salt Lake City, then the car will be transferred to a short line. At Green River I'll arrange for a work train on the mine spur to take over."

"You do this and I don't go," Kathleen interrupted. "I'm the one who has to face the music and I'm not going down there with a forty piece band playing the theme of The Golden Girl. This head of red hair is going to be handicapped enough. If I go in as Kathleen Gregory, I'm defeated before I start."

"She's right," affirmed Beatrice. "Now this is the way I'll manage it. Kathleen and I will drive down from Salt Lake City, as tourists."

"Oh no we won't," checked Kathleen. "This is my exposition and I'm choosing the personnel. There won't be any Gregorys included. If you trust me enough to ask me to do this favor for the clan, then you're going to have to trust me enough to let me handle it my way, no questions asked."

"I told you how she'd act," cried Beatrice with an air of washing her hands of the whole affair.

"You have a plan, daughter?" queried Angus.

Kathleen nodded. "The beginning of one. This I know: Donald MacDonald is just as much prejudiced against the Gregorys as we are against him. I want a chance to meet him and have him know me as an individual before he associates me with his enemies. I don't want to divulge my plan to anyone save Uncle Douglas. If you'll feel better about things I'll take him with me to some nearby point—" "Take care of yourself."

"Douglas," spat Beatrice, "he hasn't a brain in his head." "His brains are in his heart," Kathleen snapped back. "And his tongue isn't hinged in the middle and wagging at both ends. How about it, Dad?"

Angus paused a moment. "Kathleen," he murmured, "I think you smarter than the lot of us; put together. All I ask is that you take care of yourself."

"See you at home," Kathleen cried in triumph, stooped to kiss her mother, patted her Uncle Douglas and whirled out of the room.

"Bridget!" She caught the surprised secretary in her arms. "Hurry out of here. I want to talk business to you where no one can hear us. Honey, you and I are going out to that spot you are looking for. And believe me, we're going to find gold in them thar hills."

Bridget backed away, amazed. "Does it occur to you that I don't want to go anywhere with a Gregory?"

"Ah," jeered Kathleen, "something more we have in common. Suppose I'm no longer a Gregory?"

"But I won't be a party to this plan. I'm surprised that you, with your spirit, could so demean—"

"Demean, my eye," interposed Kathleen blithely. "Come on, don the bonnet. Dan's bringing my car around in five minutes. And I'll bet The Golden Girl against your picture of golden hills, that once I've talked to you, you'll be rarin' to go."

"That," stated Bridget, ruefully, "is exactly what I fear, therefore the answer is no, in advance."

Woman Describes New England Hurricane in Letter to Father

Thrilling experiences of Captain and Mrs. Luther W. Evans and their two sons, of Fort Wright, on Fishers Island in Long Island Sound, during the terrific storm which swept that area last week, are recounted in a letter from Mrs. Evans to her father, J. Calvin Lady, 109 Springs avenue. Mrs. Evans was Miss Alma Lady before her marriage. Ken and Jack Evans mentioned in the following account are sons of Captain and Mrs. Evans. Kenneth is nine years old and Jack is eight.

The Evans home was damaged, the garage blown away and the army post where Captain Evans is stationed was damaged extensively by the hurricane. One of their sons was injured while Captain and Mrs. Evans were caught in New London, nine miles away, where the storm caused damage of about $4,000,000.

The letter follows:
We are slowly getting back to normal after one of the worst experiences anyone could have. On Wednesday afternoon, September 21, 1938, Fishers Island, New London, and the whole New England coast was swept by the severest tropical hurricane in its history. The anemometer on our weather station here blew away while it was registering a wind velocity of 105 miles per hour, and the wind continued to rise until it blew steadily at 120 miles per hour, with gusts even higher. It is miraculous that no lives were lost on the post, and only a few in New London, although in its whole area the storm toll is still rising and may reach 1,000, with property damage running into the hundreds millions.

We went to New London, Connecticut, on the noon boat Wednesday, while Kenneth and Jack went to school. Northeast storm warnings had been displayed all morning from our mast, but at noon the barometer was still nearly normal. At about 2:30 p. m. the wind began to rise, and the rain came in sheets. At 2:50 p. m. we called some friends of ours at Fort Wright and told them that the boat might not be able to get back, and asked them to take care of Ken and Jack. They said at that time that the storm was already raging on the island, which is nine miles out of New London, and that we should not attempt to make the trip. However, at 3:15 p. m. we left the dock, and had almost reached the half-way lighthouse when the hurricane struck. The captain immediately turned around, and started back for the dock. He succeeded in reaching it, but the wind and waves made it impossible to get out, a gang plank. For awhile it seemed as though we might be able to ride out the storm on the boat, but when the barometer continued to fall the order was given to abandon ship. Women first, and then the men in order of rank, were thrown over the ship and on to the dock, as the ship pitched and strained at her hawsers, grinding against the dock. Shelter in Warehouse

We took shelter in a warehouse near the dock, and felt secure behind its corrugated iron walls. However, as the wind rose higher, the waves began breaking against the sides of the building, and we saw the walls begin to give way, so we moved into a brick warehouse adjoining the floor of which was several feet higher. The waves continued to rise, and we saw that we were not safe as the windows started crashing. We gave orders to move again, this time to higher ground away from the waterfront. The men carried the women, and the young assisted the old, through the water that was already more than knee deep over the tracks of the New Haven main line from New York to Boston. At 3:10 p. m. I had watched the "Bostonian" pull out of the New London station a half-hour late. "The Bostonian" was found on Saturday at Stonington, only a few miles out of New London, completely wrecked.

One group of about fifty found shelter in the substantial building of the Savings Bank of New London, where we were safe from hurricane and tidal wave. From here we organized searching parties to look for several that were missing, and also put out a small fire that had started a short distance away. On one of these trips to the waterfront, we saw the large ferry, "Fishers Island," torn loose from her moorings and crash broadside into our boat, which was still at its dock. By this time, fire had broken out in the business district, and again we found it necessary to move to safety. Streets were blocked by demolished buildings and uprooted trees, and firemen were powerless against the fire which spread rapidly in the gale, and burned all night. The militia had been called out, and our group of regular army men were pressed into service to aid in establishing fire lines and prevent looting. The women were moved to the lobby of the Mohican hotel. No rooms were available anywhere. From time to time we would walk out, and it is impossible to describe the horror of that night, within a city in flames, homeless families wandering around, broken glass, crumpled roofs, fallen buildings, and uprooted trees everywhere. All sorts of wild rumors spread with amazing speed. The roof of Grand Central station in New York city had blown off. Fishers Island had been swept clean by the tidal wave and was nothing but a sand dune. You can imagine how we felt about the boys, and of course the folks here felt the same about us, for they could see the flames of burning New London. Our telephone call at 2:50 p. m. had been one of the last to get through, and we could not get the island even by the police short wave radio. One rumor that had wide circulation was that the army boat had gone down with all passengers, and when we denied it by saying that we were survivors, they looked at us as though we were ghosts. Shortly after 1:00 a. m. Thursday we moved to the lobby of the Y.M.C.A. where we found several chairs unoccupied, and made ourselves as comfortable as possible until daybreak. All this time, of course, we were still soaked to the skin, and few, if any, got any sleep. In the meantime, the fire had been brought under control by dynamiting, and we started out to see the devastation. We found the entire waterfront destroyed by the fire, and practically all boats sunk, grounded, wrecked, or out of commission. At the municipal dock, seven big fishing boats were smashed into one tangle of kindling wood, with several just showing their stacks above the water. A huge steel lighthouse tender was squarely across the railroad tracks. At our own dock, the building in which we had thought we found shelter was a wreck. The cars that had been parked there had been completely covered by the tidal wave. Our dock was splintered and broken. The furniture of an officer due to arrive here in a few weeks from Panama was scattered about the dockyard, and some of it was floating out to sea on the outgoing tide. One of our boats was beached on a coal pile, the other was anchored out in midstream with a broken rudder, the coast guard boats were bottled up in a cove when a barge sank and blocked the entrance, and the navy was using every available boat for rescue, so we were stranded.

We organized the men into crews to straighten up some of the tangled mess of splintered dock, floating furniture, wrecked cars, and the like around the dock area, and waited for help to come. As the morning passed, our anxiety grew, for no word had come from the island, and we reasoned that if anybody was still alive they would get in touch with us in some way. Finally, at noon we sighted a ship, and it turned out to be our junior mine-planter "Arnold." As soon as it was within hailing distance, we learned that everyone was safe, although they prepared us to expect severe restrictions on the use of water were lifted.

At 2:00 p. m. Thursday, 22 hours later than we had expected when we left Wednesday noon, we returned to the post, and found things in pretty bad shape. The tidal wave had covered the parade ground, and washed the hurricane-wrecked National Guard camp up to the pavement opposite the officers' line. Most of the houses were unroofed, all but five garages were demolished, and practically all of the trees on the post were uprooted. The big brick chimney behind the Service club had fallen into my husband's office and the library. The bandstand blew down. In two hours, the scenery changed from late summer to midwinter, because what trees are still standing were stripped completely of their leaves, and all grass and plants are dead. There is no more green than in January.

Boys' Experiences
We learned how the boys had survived the storm here. They were dismissed from school at the beginning of the storm, and stood there in the rain, with trees falling all around them, waiting for the bus. Jack was blown against a stone wall, and cut his chin. He was given.

Manheim, Pa.—Earl Finefrock got a job cutting corn and set out to show his farmer-employer he was worthy of his hire. In no time at all, he had cut 30 shocks and was still working full speed when the farmer came along and stopped him. He'd been working in a neighbor's field.

RECKLESS

Detroit.—Police arrested Mike Smith, 65, and told traffic Judge Thomas F. Maher they had these facts to back up the charge of Reckless driving: Smith's car was a 1927 model and lacked brakes. One rear wheel was larger than the other three wheels. The body had slipped on the frame and was almost scraping the ground at the rear. Judge Maher gave Smith 30 days to get the car overhauled.

RESOURCEFUL

Kansas City, Kas.—On trial on a charge of destruction of property, a negro testified before police Judge Earl Thomas: "I saw my wife coming at me with a big knife, and I ran into a beer parlor next door and out through the back door." "That," said the proprietor of the beer parlor, "was when he destroyed property. There was no rear door. He made one."

TOWN'S BEST CUTUP

Chicago.—Catcher Al Todd of the Pittsburgh Pirates was a bit burned up when several fans needed him over his unsuccessful effort to stretch a single into a double against the Cubs. On his way to the dugout, Todd turned to one of the good-natured hecklers in a box a few feet away and barked: "I'll bet you're a cutup in your home town." He didn't know the ribbing fan was State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, whose axe squads have chopped up nearly 300 horse race betting parlors in the last six weeks.

STORM MOVING UP COAST NOT CALLED SEVERE

(By the Associated Press)

A southern storm which sent two tornadoes ripping through Charleston, South Carolina, Thursday, moved rapidly toward Long Island and the hurricane-stricken areas of New England today, but the weather bureau said there was little likelihood its force would be as devastating as last week's storm.

Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist in charge of the New York weather bureau, said the storm would swirl up the coast with Long Island's shores and Nantucket, Massachusetts, feeling the outer edge of it. New York city likely will experience strong northeast winds, he said.

Rain fell over the metropolitan area of New York this morning and the coast guards at Fire Island, the isolated barrier beach off Long Island which was devastated last week, said the wind was blowing at 40 miles an hour, whipping up thundering surfs as the tide rose. The wind was increasing hourly, the report said.

As wind and rain raced up from the south word came from Wilmington, North Carolina, that a large part of the city was flooded after a 9 1/4 inch rain which fell during an 18-hour period. More rain was predicted for today.

The coast guard reported the 5,500-ton freighter, City of Atlanta, bound from Boston to Savannah was foundering with disabled engines off Cape Hatteras, North Carolina. The seas were running high, the coast guard said, battering the 400-foot craft, which has 54 men on board. This cutter Moddo was dispatched to aid the ship.

Storm warnings were posted along the coast from the Virginia Capes to Eastport, Maine.

Rain was falling steadily in Maryland and in the Philadelphia area. Philadelphia reported winds of 20 to 25 miles an hour.

Doctor Kimball said he doubted there would be any tornadoes like the two which struck Charleston, bringing death to at least 26 persons, injuries to hundreds and inflicting property damage estimated at between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000.

PITT, COLUMBIA, CORNELL PICKED TO WIN IN EAST

By HERBERT W. BARKER

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—With one foot in the water bucket and the other ready to follow in the same general direction on an instant's notice, this football guessing corner surveys this week's program, takes one deep breath, and whispers hoarsely...

Temple—Pitt: May be too close for comfort but this corner strings along with Pitt.

Minnesota—Nebraska: Biff Jones' Cornhuskers shocked Minnesota a year ago and may have lined up another surprise party for Saturday. But the speed and resourcefulness Minnesota uncovered against Washington a week ago seems to entitle Bernie Berman's Gophers to the nod here.

Cornell—Colgate: The Cornells, George Peck, Whit Baker, et al. are coming back to the wars with what looks like a real power-house. Andy Kerr had a bad season at Colgate last year and there's no indication yet that the Scotsman has much more than hope right now. Cornell.

Carnegie—Davis Elkins: Carnegie, Stanford—Santa Clara: The Stanfords are having a little line trouble and probably won't be ready for this, Santa Clara.

Yale—Columbia: One of the hardest of them all to figure. Despite the loss of last year's all-star backfield, Yale threatens to be as tough as ever. Columbia's veteran eleven, with Sid Luckman pitching passes, will be no bargain for any rival, especially during the early season before injuries have cut into Lou Little's customary small squad. The coin says Columbia.

Harvard—Brown: Tuss McLaughry seldom gets enough material at Brown to keep the Bruins within hailing distance of their major rivals. They look better this year but not enough to smear the Crimson, Harvard.

Army—Virginia Tech: Army packs too much power for the southerners. Navy—Virginia Military: Ditto Navy but it probably will be much closer.

Penn—Lafayette: Lafayette's leopards were unbeaten last year but this shot in the dark picks Penn.

Ohio State—Indiana: Who let this one get in so early in the campaign? The Hoosiers ruined Ohio State's otherwise perfect big ten slate a year ago and are out to do it again. This wavering guess says, however, that it's Ohio State's turn.

Michigan—Michigan State: Fritz Crisler has moved his base from Princeton to Michigan and this marks his formal bow. The ball game, the coin says, will go to state. Notre Dame—Kansas: The Irish had better tend to their knitting or the eight ball will get them here. Notre Dame.

Southern California—Oregon State: Southern California to bounce back from the Alabama debacle.

Washington State—California: Not much punch in State, California.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Texas Tech over Duquesne; Princeton over Williams; Penn State over Maryland; Fordham over Upsala; New York University over Maine; and Villanova over American International.

LET GEORGE DO IT

York, Pa. (AP)—Several worried residents of West Locust street asked police to remove a hornets' nest from a tree. A desk sergeant said police always like to oblige, but in this case, well... would they mind asking someone with a little more experience?

A PLACE FOR EVERYONE

To encourage neatness and family co-operation, assign a shelf or drawer to each member of the family to hold all school equipment, favorite magazines, music and other personal effects.

An Indian legend holds that fire was discovered when buffaloes' hoofs struck sparks from rock and set some dry brush afire.

"The Safe Handling of other People's Money"

There are many ways of describing the business of banking, but they all come down to one simple definition—"the safe handling of other people's money."

To be faithful to his public trust, every banker must keep this important fact constantly in mind. He must think of it whenever he makes an investment or lends money. He must be guided by his experience and judgment, not swayed by the wishes or importunities of borrowers or anyone else.

The banker must be willing to forget all thought of his own popularity and think of nothing but the safety of his depositors' money. This is the paramount guiding principle of sound banking.
